

Nalini Malani

Née à Karachi en 1946, Nalini Malani vit et travaille à Mumbai. A l'aide d'icônes féminines de la mythologie indienne (Radha, Sita) ou occidentale (Medée, Cassandre) ou bien de personnages comme Alice au pays des merveilles, elle explore la condition féminine d'hier et d'aujourd'hui.

En 2007, elle est choisie par Robert Storr pour faire partie de la 52ème Biennale de Venise et réalise un ensemble de «reverse paintings», une technique issue de la tradition indienne de la peinture sous verre. Ce même été, l'IMMA à Dublin, lui consacre une rétrospective, accompagnée d'un catalogue, présentant peintures, dessins, vidéos et projections. Elle a également été exposée au Stedelijk Museum à Amsterdam, au Centre Pompidou à Paris et au Castello de Rivoli à Turin. En 2013, elle est récompensée par le prix de la culture asiatique de Fukuoka pour les Arts et la Culture. En mai 2019, elle remporte la septième édition du prix Joan Miró, décerné par la Fondation Joan Miró et La Caixa, pour l'ensemble de son oeuvre.
